<https://nomadit.co.uk/conference/rai2020#8339>

Short abstract: The transnationalist perspective in anthropology, geography and linguistics makes it possible to tackle the growing awareness of groups of people (e.g. migrants, the religious communities, the heritagescapes, and the like) to be part simultaneously of different sociocultural contexts.

Both theoretical and empirical proposals are welcome, that aim at strengthening the links between Anthropology, Geography and Linguistics and fostering the joint effort to face the complex issues of contemporaneity.
